Okay, so I am coming to the end of this hash, minding my own business – about to walk into what seems like a nightmare water way/marsh that unbeknownst to me , had a motherload of Cow Itch..... When Colin approaches me and asks me “When last yuh wrote a hash trash?” . I knew I get ketch good then because it has been ages – even I couldn’t remember. Steups! “ Colin , man – yuh wait till the end of the hash to spring this on me?!” Vex now, I started to plow, waist deep through this water which later on I would realize was the pivotal part of the hash. Back to that later.....!

Okay so this was one of those hashes I was searching for an excuse to miss – my hash partner fractured her toe, the weather was grim, birthday weekend, the list was endless, but I had missed the last hash at Vega de Oropouche last year and heard that it was mud fuh so, and since I had never been in that part of Trinidad, I set out for the hash. By the time I reach the Beetham , it was ,as if night had suddenly arrived – rain like crazy and I thought Lord “ This going to be mess- I shoulda stay home!”! Amazingly though, by the time I reached Valencia, it was bright and sunny – like a completely different country!

The Run

I reached the hash site without getting lost, parking was tight and the place was dry – no sign of mud! It was actually a beautiful landscape that we traversed in this hash , lots of forest and with a decent turnout, the hares managed to keep the group together with the usual annoying back checks. Okay, so usual uneven trails, blah, blah, blah, fast forward to the interesting part at the end – the cow itch water course. Up to this part of the run we had not really come across any appreciable set of mud, and this canal deeply populated with grass – like something out of a Vietnam war movie made up for it. We were waist high in water and grass, I don't even want to describe the water – let's call it sewer water with aromas that we had not come across in a long time. After, what seemed like an eternity in that mess we got out and soon found ourselves in a long On-In! Well the excitement came to a head when we got back to the hash site and suddenly we see David Morand running around in his jockey shorts scratching like crazy! The cow itch had set in! A set of hasher men were similarly affected scratching like there was no tomorrow! I had heard of cow itch maybe once . But this was a convincing reason for me to continue to run in long pants to avert similar threats. Next thing I knew , David was pouring vodka down his shorts to cool things down.....! On, on – a most memorable hash! Great job Mahashma/ Papa Smurf!

THE TEMP!

A great run set by the hares - Mahashma & Pap Smurf. At 1hr 15mins, a fairly challenging through some lush forest terrain. A lovely moonlit run-site, deeply nestled at the edge of the forest, away from the hustle and bustle. I'm almost certain everyone thoroughly enjoyed the run, except for having to wade through some murky, dank swamp water at the end of the hash. I've never seen so many hashers fondling themselves and running to bathe as quickly as possible. A typically raucous and demanding crowd at the down-down proceedings - something we've come to accept at the this Hash...though all proceedings came off well.

We had Eric donate a keg of beer on account of his birthday earlier in the week which was devoured by the hashers in record time! I will echo the concern of the hare Papa Smurf and a few others that we should have patronized the run site for a little while longer, and as is customary - enjoy the lime being hosted by the hares.

The after lime picked up at the bar out at the junction, where we were treated to quite a bit more drinks and some good music; a really nice group of hashers in the company of Papa Smurf, Sandra & extended family.

In the end, a highly enjoyable hash and a fantastic first experience as stand-in HM! Thanks to those committee members who assisted (Marita, Diane & Eric).

THE POOFTER

MICHELLE AGAIN????

Is either she love the free beer or the attention! BUT either way.... she takes it in good stride.

Michelle girl.....ON ON and continue to have fun!

POOFTER— Michelle

And then it was the down down....the hares had their usual down down and then the virgins....23 off them!!!

New Shoes: Denise, Liz, Terron

POOFTER Nominees: Marlon Newallo: Marlon was afraid of the swamp water, and caused a big panic, scampering all the ladies around him

Michelle Girod: Tripped and fell into the dirty swamp water, then decided to have a bath all the same

Harold Lee: For getting booted as one of the hares for the run

David Morand: For exposing himself in front of the entire hash in his tightie-whites for some alleged leeches on his private parts

Winner: A close battle between David & Michelle, with Michelle prevailing in the end. Michelle's on a hattrick of Poofsters now!!

PUNISHED HASHERS

Joshua Ho: For questioning the Hash Master

Sheldon: For talking during the Hash Hush

Mahashma: For the hares leading the walkers into a maribunta nest

Quentin Philip: For calling the hareline and asking if the run was still on today due to rain (Absent)

HASHING SPIRIT RECOGNITION: Barbara Paton

BIRTHDAY'S —ERIC & DAVID MORAND
