Who say Preysal?! Well yes who send meh! It started off as any promising hash – nice overcast day and a great, enthusiastic group of drinkers (oops I mean runners) ready to tackle some good ole trails. The run started through a muddy, wet trail whereby some hashers took it upon themselves to stomp in the muddy water to 'soak dong' other fellow hashers. After reaching the end of the trail and hitting an X we made the trek back through the trail and wounded up at a muddy river next to a mountain whereby we all attempted to climb up. Some hashers successfully made it up on their first attempt but for the rest of us, we made it half way up only to slip and slide back down in the river...several times. Of course there were the kind Samaritan hashers that stayed back to assist the slip and sliders, bless their hearts. Shortly thereafter we arrived at terrain that was covered in clay. Like seriously. Clay. Everywhere. Our shoes sunk through the clay adding on an additional 10 pounds to each shoe. We then proceeded to run in slow motion with our newly acquired leg weights. ON ON! The hash continued on until I heard the most blissful two words that have ever been combined in the history of all combined words ever: "Beer Stop!". After carb-loading and replenishing we continued on until we reached the "In On" sign (yes the In On sign. Needless to say that was a pofter nominee in the making). The hash ended with a lovely cultural riddim section and quite the luscious belly dancer who captivated our attention. Of course after the cultural festivities de parang party start! And with it came what can only be described as a giant orgy on the dance floor. I think it's safe to say that some people were definitely turned "on on". Fortunately no hashers were harmed during the making of said hash orgy.

Colin's Contrivance

Well what a hash! – Though I neither officiated at this hash nor muddied my feet. I am now somehow stuck with a write-up, the stand-in HM refused to do.

What can I say? This bunch of hares knows how to throw a damn good hash! A well poised run site, on a narrow swath of hill overlooking the proposed Couva Children's Hospital.

In what could only be described a piss poor conditions, well over 75 hashers crammed underneath a 20'x20' tent and had their eardrums stress tested by the exuberance of a DJ, then further by a local tassa side. But you know – they loved it!; what better way to enjoy an after hash lime. Talk 'bout party – we could do with a hash like that every week. Is conga line, man wining on woman, woman wining on man. Hashers had a whale of a time. Did I mention the exotic Indian dancer? Food was good also – people came to this hash just for the roti. They weren't disappointed.

Tough to see how the Cental Posse gonna outdo themselves come next year.
