Started the afternoon by bumming a ride to Las Cuevas and upon arriving noted that cars were already parking well up the hill from the compound. Having a 'special' individual in the car I approached the guard who advised that there was a spot for handicapped and she let us in. This caused some 'discussion' with the HM who was left hanging like the rest of the plebs (which he is NOT)

This was my first hash for 2014 and other than the 2 runs at the end of the year I had missed most for 2013. I was surrounded by a sea of faces that I did not recognize with the exception of the 'regular oldies' like Bets, Doc, Arthur, Blunders and the like. Minding my own business I was approached by the On Sec to write the trash. This is the most dreaded of all duties (for me) and I tried to wangle out of it saying that I do not know most of the runners present so would have difficulty writing a trash. However, knowing the difficulty in acquiring a scribe I agreed. So here goes.....

We started off exiting the compound with the runners going to the left and the small group of walkers to the right. The runners went uphill and around only to find themselves on the beach just below where we started. The pack was fairly well spread at this point but with a good check we were soon all back together and scrambling uphill to the road. This lead us to the hill of hills (short but steep) just off to the left off the road. I never thought that there would be such eagerness to climb a hill. There was pushing and shoving but the trail head was small and soon the pack went from 2 deep to 15 deep with runners backing up into the road. The ascent was very slow for those who did manage to make it up as the trail was dicey. Eventually only a small number of runners (I was not one) were able to continue as the trail apparently deteriorated and the balance of the pack had to run along the road to where the 'mountain goats' would exit. Again the pack regrouped as they looked for the correct trail. It was at this time that I saw Steve Lewis a runner from the distant past and there were hugs and greetings before we heard the on -on call down the muddy road (welcome back Steve, hope we see you regularly).

Muddy was to become the operative word as we went from one muddy trail to the next. The pack was together for most part with the help of Pinny calling on-on down a false trail and some cheeky short cutters. We eventually exited to the road again where there was a beer stop with the likes of ex HM Audrey just chilling like the beer. After imbibing some much needed amber fluid we set off on part 2.

This next section took us into the river where we weaved in and out for most part. After a very good check the pack once again had regrouped in the river and when the final on-on was called we were like wildebeests on their annual migration with runners scrambling up the river bank wherever they could get a footing. The run was now well into the hour mark and we were heading away from home. At this point a seemingly distressed Doc asked "are we going to El Tucuche?" We were not, we were just on a bit@h of a long false trail. The front runners like Mark Lee Lum, Betty, fit chick in blue were now well at the back and again there was true 'Trini' hashing with runners making it down the 'shoulder' at whatever cost through whatever terrain passing those they deemed less fit just to get back to the front. We eventually encountered the back pack and subsequently the On-In back on the road.

A very good hash, with excellent checks (even the bit@hy one and Pinny) that kept the pack together. The down downs were called and the HM stamped his authority on the proceedings with the dishing out of penalties to:-

- Miche(poofter)- disrespect
- Doon - no park for HM
- Alisa & Kylie - determining hash run times

Virgins:- Christina, Olivia, Melanie, Renaldo, Rasha, Michael, Grant, David, Dwayne, Cameron, Kevin, Angelica

New Shoes: Dexter, Kevin Birthday: Susan Reece

Poofter Nominees: Anthony Prescott, Pinny, Michelle Girod, Reina, Mumtaz

Poofter: Michelle for constantly interrupting the HM

Colin's Conundrum

Thanks to Doon and the hares for once again coming to the assistance of the hash by pulling out an excellent run. Las Cuevas has always provided itself as a site for some great runs and after hash limes. This was no exception. The beer flowed like true hash style. A wonderful mix of the regular faces with the new and 'young-er' ones.On On to 30 years of hashing with the POSHHH!
