Run: 861	Date: 29 Mar 2014	Site: Moruga	Hares: Harold, Liam, Mahashma, Papa Smurf, Dominic, Karl	Scribe: Bushbug
--------------------	-----------------------------	------------------------	--	---------------------------

The last time I had to write something under so much pressure I was in an exam! Anyways, here goes...

As someone fairly new to the hash, I'm still taken aback by the inner workings of putting together these events especially considering the committees are voluntary. Kudos to you guys for all the dedication in preparing the runs and keeping the community going. With that said, a little word to the wise. Due to the nature of the hash and its activities, when the On-Sec comes up to you with a charming smile and asks you "You mind being the scribe for this run? It's easy, just read the newsletter and write something like that." DO NOT DRINK after the run unless you were taking notes while hashing! If you "must" drink, don't do it with the HM and he pardner till everything pack up and you're stopping at every other bar from Moruga to Port of Spain! Makes it a little harder to remember stuff...

And now on to the run.

On the way down to the site, we began to get a bit worried as there wasn't a sign of a fellow hasher nowhere on the way, until we saw Gerry's vehicle going the other way (turns out he was looking for roti). Got to the site with enough time to read the dailies and chit chat a bit while waiting on the buses. When they arrived we were soon under way, that is after being filmed by something from the Terminator. So we were off and as usual front runners took off only to turn back and down into the estate, where if I'm not mistaken, I saw one of the junior hares scampering with a bag of paper off to the left! After another bout of misdirection early on which included passing a makeshift tent with some "seasoning" left out to dry, the run really took off and there was some separation of the packs.

Talk about terrain! And land! It felt like we were running through completely different countries at certain points, such as the change in vegetation and relief of the land, not us (I'm getting to that). I don't know if I was the only one that thought Moruga to be a fairly flat area. Boy was I wrong! The inclines were indeed a surprise. Especially that last set that came back to back. I heard cussing, steupsing, names for God I never heard of (and that was one person) but that last sequence of hills wasn't easy. For some reason though, the run had an even pace I found. The hares were present at regular intervals. They also seemed to find some unusual places to put the paper (which seems to have gotten expensive) like on spiderwebs and behind trees! Thanks to some thorough checking by myself (if I do say so myself) we were taken through a lengthy but enjoyable run.

The down downs...

Once again Cory was called out by the HM to be disciplined (surprise!!!) for not wearing his pofter jersey and given automatic pofter. Something tells me he in for a hat trick. I could be wrong. This run's pofter turned out to be "Lady Lipstick" (Michal) who was found guilty of applying makeup while on the hash, though it was a close call between her and (Matthew) who stole and was sharing cocoa from the field. What is it with people grabbing cocoa in the bush so??? Special mention went out to an attendee at the very first hash (Ian O' Connor) and virgin Sacha who found a "clever" way to drink his beer while wearing the pipe. Wasn't smart enough to realize he was coming to run and put on a regular jersey though...

Stray Observations.

The hares said that where the run was set was the smaller section of the land and next time we'll get the "real ting" so prepare yourselves. Also, between the GoPros and drone camera and GPs's present on the hashes we might be witnessing the end of the "scribes". Lord knows the pictures helped me remember this thing. On On!

HM's High-handedness

Nothing but a High-Grade for this hash on the holiday weekend! With the probable knowledge of the existence of latent high-grade in the general hash vicinity; hashers were unperturbed on this hot, but idyllic run location. I honestly believe that rarely does it get any better than this for a good scout and recce; compliments to the hares and estate hosts on a job well done. About the run, the terrain was very varied, with challenging inclines and lovely open running across the southern range forest. After the run, hashers were treated to pasteurized goat's milk and pea soup! No big turnout, but those who did, retain a memorable experience. I hear the buses stopped at a bar in Princes Town, but finding a particular bar in the South is like looking for a particular Chinese shop in Chinatown! I hope they had a good time, 'cause they made up the bulk of the run. Thanks to all those who braved the trip to Moruga. Great hash!

Enviro-Corner

Again even better work at this hash. The visibility is there!. Let's work on this together. Look out for your reusable hash beer mugs coming soon!

Remember Disassemble, Crush & Dispose responsibly. We're all in this together!
