On a hot glorious day we met at Blackjack Marine. Be there early as the run starts at 3:45PM Colin had warned, and to our surprise he called "Hash, Hash" at 3:45PM!! He finally gets timing on his last run!!

The Hares were Colin, Betty, Enrique and Joanne, and a medium sized pack set off along the Chaguaramas Road. After a little to'ing and fro'ing and some Hare guidance, we managed to find the trail and set off into the hills. Were there hills? Yes. Were there roads? Yes. Were there river beds? Yes a plenty, but fortunately the river beds were all dry due to a lack of recent rain. "ON, ON" this way and that way until in one river bed there was a call, "Bees!! This is always guaranteed to give the pack a necessary boost! There were some bites (stings, bees don't bite!) to be had, but nothing serious. Betty was on hand to steer the pack back from what was actually a false trail, and "ON, ON" once more. More river beds, this time skirting round/through an army base. We saw no troops and heard no gunshots so all was well. Several trails and false trails later we emerged in a nice, pretty open clearing, meeting up with the walkers yet again. There were Hashers here and Hashers there all trying to find the trail before we were "ON, ON" once more. Slower trails followed with calls of "this is a hike", "this is too slow", and of course "let's have some running"!! No beer stop on this run, but the scenery as always was great even if a little industrial at times. Eventually we came out on the Chag Road for an eastwards "ON IN" jog to finish, by now a little cooler.

Colin called the "Down-Downs" as soon as the last person was in, was this another first at the end of his reign I thought, a point voiced by another Hasher. The toast to the Hares saw Colin as the slowest to finish his beer and Betty the fastest! (Note to self - don't let the truth get in the way of a good story.) We had some lovely newbies and some chaps (not so pretty!) next and eventually got a shirtless poofster!! No excuses accepted for it being warm and wanting to show off his six pack! This was all complimented by Veg Rice, Pigeon Peas, Christmas Salad, Chicken or Fish, and lots of beer. (The bar was temporarily out of cups for the hard stuff!)

The Christmas Party followed and after much beer, thanks to the lady HASHERS who pitched in, we had the Award, Gift Giving & Handover Ceremony. Rasta Santa didn't want to risk Chick V but the Christmas Fairy did appear to host the gifts and awards. From a thank you to Bernard for letting letting the Hash frequent his Gasparee Island Home, to chat up line suggestions for the poor luckless Homie, Sheldon who it was alleged did not have much success in Tobago. Kim got a list of eligible 'single' men of which Colin was the top name, though Ronald tried to turn the list upside down, assuming he had made the bottom of the list. How wrong he was as I am assured that he did not even make the short list! And of course it would be a shame not to mention Devon's big panty gift! Colin ended his reign by handing over to his ASS Alan, who after some personal deliberations had chosen Richard Marley as his ASS, and future Hashmaster.

"The party now start!!" There were Hash sandwiches and the dancing girls laid down some "WASA Whining" that may have been captured on video. (Note to self- get a copy on You Tube!!). We had to get more beer, to refuel even more dancing by which time we started to have casualties including "is there a doctor in the house!" for an unconscious Hasher. Eventually, even the DJ had used up all his electricity, but the Hashers continued the car park lime into the wee hours. ON, ON!!
